Comments:

As a healthcare professional, I am concerned with businesses opening up too soon. We are still getting over a hundred new cases a day and deaths on a daily basis. As we have seen on the news, many folks do not believe in the social distancing and/or masks. If there were a guarantee that these rules would be followed along with the decrease in the number of people allowed into a place of business it might be ok. I don't see this happening. Some of the folks wanting these changes might feel different if someone in their immediate family was stricken and died.
