Comments:

I and my wife Susan Erath are totally against any measures to restrict voting rights here in New Mexico. This especially includes voter ID, which so obviously discriminates against minorities, elderly people, and people who are otherwise unable to obtain a drivers license. A person's signature is extremely difficult, almost impossible, to forge. This has been sufficient for years, and should remain so. If the Republican Majority on the County Commission can prove beyond a doubt that widespread voter fraud exists, then I might be open to changing my mind, but I seriously doubt it can. Why don't you Republicans attempt to convince the voting public of the validity of your ideas and beliefs, instead of trying to rig the system in your favor?
