Comments:

In some parts of the country there are billboards that state "A fed wild animal is a dead wild animal."
Feeding these no longer "wild horses" has changed their behavior and made them independent. I can't go for a walk if the herds are around because they come up to me looking for food. That is actually frightening to me.
I have watched our lands become overgrazed, more concerns about water as our population grows for both humans and animals. And worst of all people getting in fights about their different opinions.
If these wild horses are truly wild then STOP making them domesticated and dependent on us humans. Yes, some will die and then the balance will return without our willful interference .
The horses are too many now for our land. Let them be. Stop feeding them. Stop domesticating them.
